Pioneering the North in the wilderness of passion and dirty dealing

“It looks like like a Hollywood blockbuster”
 – Hugo Dumas, La Presse

History just got uncensored!

Prepare for a gripping hyper-realistic drama of the struggles of a hopeful people as they cultivate the wild land they must colonize. The heart-wrenching love-triangle between innocent yet strong Donalda, her beloved Alexis, the village hero, and greedy Seraphin, the mayor’s son who makes a business of lending money at usurious rates, shows the resilience of the brave against a backdrop of scheming politics. The earthy priest, Curé Labelle, keeps moral order and inspires hope for the poor. He has big plans for a national railroad, to develop the North, bring back the youth who leaves for the US to work; he also has political aspirations to link together the French colonies as a stronghold against English Canada...

“A television masterpiece... This is really big TV!... It’s so dirty, earthy, savory, subtle and complex ...it was so pleasurable that my toes were curling up!”

- Richard Martineau, Le Journal de Montréal
